Dear Mr. Humiston:

Your letter to General Smith of August 27, 1951 has been received. The Counter-Intelligence Corps comes under the Department of the Army, and therefore this Agency has no information regarding enlistment therein.

I believe, however, that unless procedures have been changed since World War II, there are no direct enlistments in the CIC, but rather after basic training is completed individuals desiring to transfer to the Corps may apply for such assignment through normal military channels.

Sincerely,

SIGNED

Assistant to the Director
